[COMMUNICATED. "A Fireman," in his reply to my communication, again "forgets to do as he wishes to be done by;" i. e., think "three times before you speak once." If he will read my article again he will see (I hope) that I did in no manner charge the Hand Engine Companies with inefficiency at any fire, but claimed that the "steamer" had rendered more service at the fires mentioned by me, (and by him,) than all the other companies combined; and if I failed to prove the fact, I thank him for having reinforced me, by stating that at the fire at Cross's building, "the steamer had the main plug, and monopolized all the water." Why was this so? If it be true, what does it prove? Simply this: that the steamer can and has thrown all the water that can be obtained from the main on the fire. When did the Hand Engines give such convincing evidence of their power? I will re-iterate what I said before; that I believe the Hand Engines have, and do now do all they can; but that the steamer has been worth all the others combined in the extinguishment of fires since it has been introduced into the department. One more "Broadside" at "A Fireman," and I hope he will think a dozen times before he speaks again. He says: "As an Active Fireman I could not remain silent." He claims to be an ACTIVE Fireman, yet he acknowledges that "at the burning of the Theatre I was absent. having failed to hear the alarm" It the alarm of that fire did not awake him, I have but little hopes of his efficiency, for I do know that the steamer did, at that five, prevent the spread of the flames as before stated, and may have prevented him from being aroused from his slumbers by the near approach of the devouring element to his residence, whilst he was in bed, and asleep, while Active Firemen were

I do not know who "Query" is, and therefore have not "reinforced" him, but merely desire "to render unto Cæsar the things which AN OLD FIREMAN. are Cæsar's."

We respectfully ask our correspondents on the subject of Fires and Fire Companies to be brief; as the discussion has now been protracted, and it is almost time "to call the previous question and close the debate."

FOR SALE AND RENT.

FORSALE. - A VIRGINIA SHEEP FARM 1 1070 acres, near Catlett's Station, adjoining the "New Jersey Settlement." (throughout which a Union sentiment, is, and was during the late rebellion, predominant,) will be sold, for cash payment, a cheap bargain.

It is situated on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, which runs through the estate, at 35 miles from Alexandria; and is called "Bushy Ridge Plantation." There are supposed to be about 400 acres of timber land, averaging about 20 cords per acre; and the rest is in various states of cultivation.

There is a good FRAME HOUSE, built since the war. The fencing, about half, late-ly repaired; the other half-destroyed by the troops-requires to be repaired.

There are many springs of right good water; of which one, never failing, is laid on with pipes to the kitchen. If not sold shortly, the farm will be let, at a money rent, to a responsible tenant, with good sureties; or the advertiser would exchange the estate for good city property, of equal value, in Alexandria, Washington or Georgetown. If sold for payment by installments, the usual stipulation will be required, and prohibiting the cuiting of timber, (except for farm and domes-tic purposes) until the payment of the last installment, when the title, quite perfect, will be transferred to the purchaser.
